WHERE 40,000 AFRICAN VIOLET PLANTS ARE CONSTANTLY UNDER CULTIVATION

At Granger Gardens our three large greenhouses are devoted exclusively to the propagation and development of African Violets . . . Here 40,000 plants are being continuously cultivated to give us a constant supply of mature, blooming plants for shipment. Perfect growing conditions are maintained to assure healthy development. Plants are never forced, but grow normally under proper applications of tepid water and periodic feeding (about every ten days) by an application of water-soluble plant food (such as Hyponex) . . . This food is mixed in the proportion of 1 ounce to about 8 to 10 gallons of water and is applied through our regular sprinkling system.

We have specialized for years in the culture of African Violets and know how to produce them with the vitality that makes beautiful plants and gorgeous bloomers . . . New varieties are being constantly developed from proven strains, they are cultivated to blooming maturity and carefully checked before being offered to our customers. We fill all orders from the select budded or blooming plants that have been grown in their own pots on our greenhouse benches. These African Violet plants average in size the actual reproduction shown in the lower right hand corner of this page. All plants are inspected under U. S. Department of Agriculture regulations and Sodium Salenat treated. Orders are handled promptly and shipped under guarantee to reach you in perfect condition . . . Replacement of plants damaged in transit will be made without charge upon return of plant or plants to us.

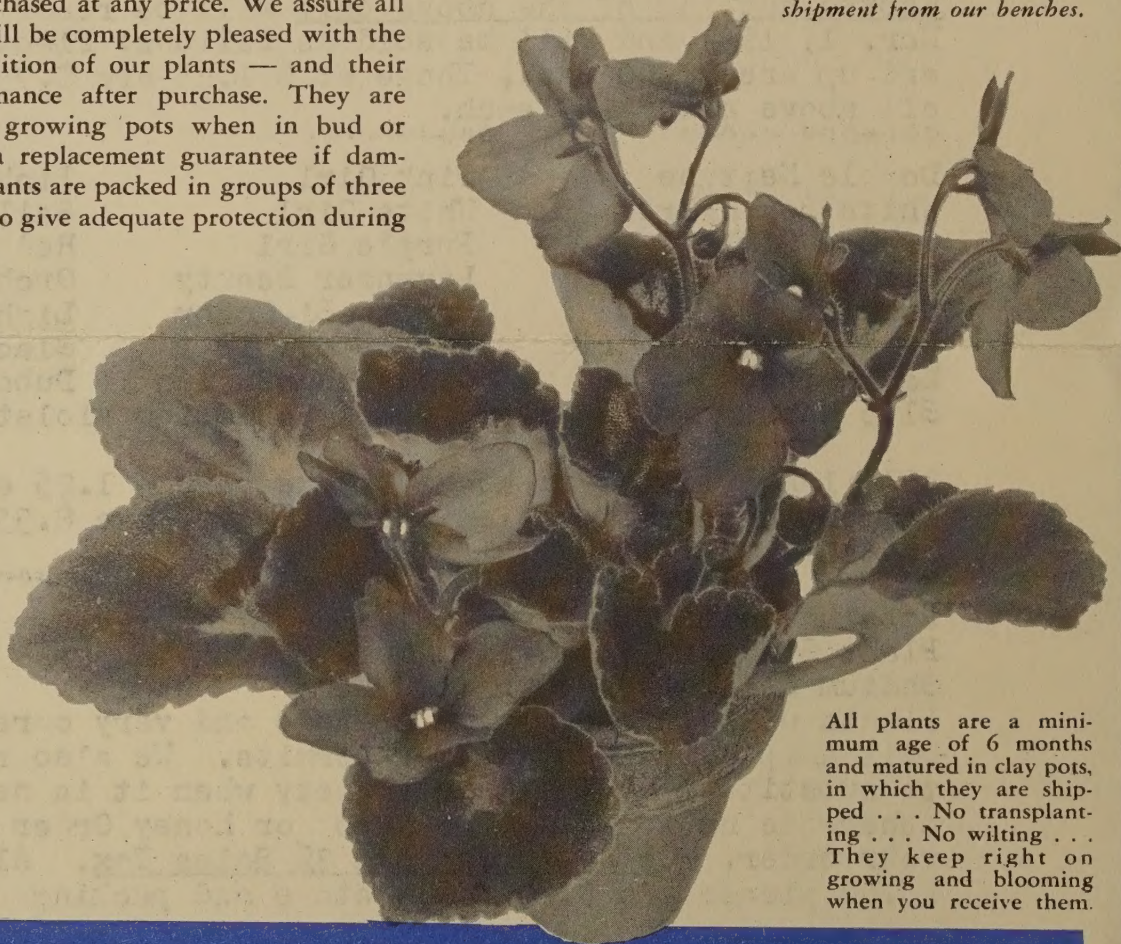

Our Plants Grow Vigorously and Produce a Profusion of Bloom . . .

Because we produce all of our African Violets in our own greenhouses under our own control the plants we sell are uniformly sturdy, rich in foliage coloring and profuse bloomers. No finer quality plants can be purchased at any price. We assure all purchasers they will be completely pleased with the fine, healthy condition of our plants — and their blooming performance after purchase. They are shipped in their growing pots when in bud or blooming under a replacement guarantee if damaged in transit. Plants are packed in groups of three in special cartons to give adequate protection during transit.

See Back of This Sheet for Listing of New Varieties --

On the back of this sheet is a mimeographed listing of varieties available at the time you receive it. Many favorites are always available, but new varieties are being constantly propagated and it is for your convenience in selecting new developments that we send you this list of varieties currently ready for shipment.

All plants are a minimum age of 6 months and matured in clay pots, in which they are shipped . . . No transplanting . . . No wilting . . . They keep right on growing and blooming when you receive them.
